

Terry McInnis MD, MPH, FACOEM
Medical Director- Health Policy and Advocacy
GlaxoSmithKline

As the Medical Director for Health Policy and Advocacy with GlaxoSmithKline, Dr. McInnis has presented nationally on the concepts of benefit design strategies and solutions to rising healthcare costs. By aligning financial incentives with quality outcomes for payers, patients, and physicians, she presents evidence of how to reduce overall health care costs. Systematic changes are possible to maximize quality of health care for engaged patients while reimbursing providers adequately for continuous, coordinated, and proactive care. She currently serves as an Officer of the Patient Centered Primary Care Collaborative and is Co-Chair of the Center for Public Payer Implementation. She has or continues to serve on numerous committees for organizations such as the National Business Group on Health, U.S. Chamber, Pharmacy Quality Alliance, and the American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine. She is actively involved with health policy and advocacy at the state and federal government level in emerging payment systems.

She has over 20 years of senior executive and clinical experience in various employer, military (US Air Force), and hospital/group practice health management segments. Prior to joining GSK, she was an Assoc. Medical Director and Health Care Manager with GE and later the Corporate Medical Director for Michelin North America where she helped engineer the redesign of the healthcare benefits for nearly 50,000 beneficiaries.

Dr. McInnis graduated from Erskine College with a BS (summa cum laude), and received her Doctor of Medicine degree from Wake Forest Medical School being designated a NIH student clinical scholar. She completed a residency in Occupational Medicine as an OPSF scholar, and a MPH (high honors) at the University of Oklahoma. She is Board Certified in Preventive and Occupational Medicine, a Fellow of the American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine, and a Former Course Advisor to the Department of Continuing Education of Harvard University. She serves on the Board of Trustees of The Thornwell Home for Children.
