

G. Clyde Jinks III
Group Executive
Business Systems
TSYS, Inc.

Jinks leads TSYS' new efforts to break into the burgeoning market of healthcare payments, now estimated to be worth more than $2 trillion a year. His plan: To leverage TSYS' core assets with an innovative model that will remove payment inefficiencies from the U.S. healthcare system.

In his previous role as senior director of corporate strategy and planning, Jinks was responsible for developing international and domestic strategic and long-range plans for TSYS, as well as identifying and evaluating alliances or acquisitions to support business-development efforts.

Jinks joined TSYS in 1987, holding a series of leadership roles in the company that include research and development, interchange and accounting, and international strategic planning.

His first experience with the company, however, dates to a summer internship in 1984, during which he worked as a programmer.

Jinks graduated from Duke University in Durham, N.C., where he earned a bachelor's degree in computer science with a concentration in management science. He also graduated from the American Bankers' Association National School of Bank Card Management.

He is active in the Columbus community, serving in a number of capacities for local non-profit organizations. He and his wife have two children.